What is a 'default date'?

Your Letter of Offer (LOO) and Confirmation of Enrolment/s (COE/s) advise a default date for each program. The default date is to identify the final date for enrolment and entry to your chosen course.

If you are experiencing visa delays, the default date on these documents can advise the Australian Department of Home Affairs, in-country Embassy or High Commission the latest start date that CIT will accept you into the program.

What happens if I do not receive my visa by the default date?

If you are not able to arrive to commence your classes by the default date due to visa delays, you will be required to provide written advice to isadmissions@cit.edu.au to defer your offer to the next available intake.
